ARTS BRIEFS

History exhibit adds items from '92 film

SOUTH BEND — The exhibit "Women in Sports: Breaking Barriers" at the Northern Indiana Center for History, 808 W. Washington St., now includes several items from the 1992 film "A League of Their Own."

Memorabilia includes a baseball autographed by Tom Hanks, Madonna and Geena Davis, a replica Rockford Peaches uniform worn in the movie and more.

"Women in Sports" showcases the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League. The history center is the league's national repository.

The exhibit includes current sports stars, including Mia Hamm, Venus and Serena Williams, along with legends such as Billie Jean King.

Score cards, scrapbooks and the gold medal won by 2000 Olympic swimmer Lindsay Benko, a native of Elkhart, are among the items on display.

The exhibit runs through Aug. 17. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $6, with discounts for seniors and students.

For information, call (574) 233-9664.

Watercolor course for beginners

NAPPANEE — Find out how therapeutic and inspiring painting can be with a watercolor class at Market Street Studio, 105 W. Market St.

Beginning watercolor classes for adults will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. on Wednesdays during the month of February.

Students will learn to choose and implement the right supplies and create a pleasing composition using various techniques. They will complete at least two paintings.

Cost for the four-session course is $50 per student. Supplies may be purchased separately at the studio.

Register by calling (574) 773-5242 by Feb. 1.

Museum orientation for guides Wednesday

BRISTOL — An orientation class for volunteer tour guides will be from 1 to 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Elkhart County Historical Museum, 304 W. Vistula Road.

The orientation is for anyone who would enjoy volunteering as a guide at the museum. Tours will include all ages, including school groups.

All participants will receive a museum tour guidebook.

To register, call (574) 848-4222.

Studebaker extends its war exhibit

SOUTH BEND — "The Studebaker Goes to War" exhibit has been extended to run through Feb. 22 at the Studebaker National Museum, 525 S. Main St.

The exhibit features Studebaker's military history, from supplying wagons to the Union Army in the Civil War to furnishing vehicles for the Vietnam conflict, and includes vehicles, photos, works of art and other memorabilia.

In addition, a collection of seven flags are on loan from the Alice Cooper family.

The flag collection consists of the first flag (1777 with 13 stars) to the present and were handmade by Alice Cooper.

Museum hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and noon to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Landing on Mystery Stuff

Long ago, the sight of a comet frightened people. With its bright head and long, wispy tails, comets did not look like anything else in the sky. And, unlike the sun, stars, and moon, comets did not seem to appear on any schedule.

Comets were a deep mystery.

We now know that comets are part of our solar system. Like the planets, they orbit the sun. Some comets, called short-period comets, take up to 200 years to make one orbit. But some comets have orbits so big and elliptical (shaped like a squashed circle) it may take millions of years to make one trip around the sun!

Comets are the icy leftovers from when our solar system formed. We can learn much about how the solar system began by studying comets. We have taken wonderful pictures of comets, but we have never before landed on one. Now a mission is being planned to do just that and bring comet samples home to Earth! Which comet will the Comet Nucleus Sample Return mission visit? We don't yet know. We do know that when the spacecraft arrives, it will have a very exciting time carrying out its assignments.

First, it will land on the comet's nucleus (the solid part). We don't even know what the surface will be like! It may be soft, like cotton candy, or hard like a rock. Gases and chunks of stuff may be boiling off the surface. After all, it is gases, dust, and ice particles from the nucleus that make up the comet's long tails.

After landing, the spacecraft will gather samples of the comet material. It will drill below the surface for some of the samples. Since comets have very little gravity, the spacecraft will have to anchor itself to the surface before it can drill for samples. Then, part of the spacecraft will blast off from the comet and bring the samples back to Earth for study. What surprising things will we learn about these beautiful and strange objects? For a word search about comets, go to the Space Place at http://spaceplace.jpl.nasa.gov/cnsr_wordfind.htm
