MUTINY UPON LAKE

FIREMEN OF STEAMER EASTLAND QUIT DUTIES.

WANTED MASHED POTATOES

Trouble is Started Because Food Was Not Served in Manner Which They Desired—Men Are Put Under Arrest.

South Haven, Mich., Aug. 14.—Because they were given boiled potatoes with the "jacket" on instead of mashed, the fireman employed aip of the steamer on the steamship Eastland mutinied yesterday when the big passenger boat was in mid-lake, leaving her at the mercy of wind and waves and half an hour.

Failing to persuade the men to resume their duties by the use of friendly argument, Capt. Pereso and his officers, armed with revolvers, arrested the strikers and locked them in a room under close guard. When the Eastland reached her dock here the six men were arrested as they stepped ashore by United States Deputy Marshal Fred Hulston and five citizens he had hastily deputized as officers.

The mutineers were taken to the city jail to await the arrival to-day of United States Marshal O'Donnel, of Grand Rapids. The prisoners are William Madden, Michael Davern, Glenn Watson, Frank La Plante, Michael Smith and Edward Fleming. They are to an surly mood and refuse to discuss the plant into which they made the steamer uncomfortable. They do admit they are members of the union.

The officers of the Eastland charge those with scuffle on board ship while at sea, and say they will prosecute the case vigorously, demanding the severest penalty for imperiling the lives of those on board the vessel.

The trouble arose at noon when the men were called to dinner. When they discovered the boiled potatoes with the skins on they immediately went on strike. After they had been arrested the deck hands, waiters, first and second engineers and a few volunteers from the passengers went into the pit and fed the furnaces for the remainder of the trip. The boat arrived here 30 minutes behind her schedule time.

The engine room of the steamer Eastland was manned by deck hands and any of the passengers who were willing to assist, and left on time under full head of steam.

SECOND TRIAL FOR AIRSHIP

Model of Langley's Craft to be Launched To-morrow.

Washington, Aug. 14.—There will be another airship test on the lower Potomac Saturday afternoon, as preparations practically have been completed for the test of another 15 foot model aerodrome, patterned after Prof. Langley's big airship.

An entirely new launching apparatus will be used in the second test. Mechanics have been engaged for several days in constructing the launching car and the track, and these will be completed to-morrow.

While the members of the scientific party will not admit there was any defect in the old launching car, it is significant that they are incurring considerable expense in constructing the new one. A more successful test is expected on Saturday, as the scientists are confident they have gained valuable experience from the first test. They are concerned, however, about the disposition of the flying machine to stick when it reaches the water.

While the experts assert they do not expect the model to take a downward plunge into the Potomac, they have a plan to prevent it from going to the bottom of the river if its flight is not successful.

The customary Thursday night audience attended the vaudeville pavilion last night. The show is very funny and creates any amount of laughter and applause. Every child in the city should see the moving pictures. They tell the pretty fairy story of "Jack and the Beanstalk" in a most realistic manner.

What will undoubtedly prove to be the best vaudeville bill of the entire season has been booked at the pavilion for next week. Mattie Vickers is on the bill as well as Bill Bloom Bare, one of the finest and highest priced musical acts on the vaudeville boards. The balance of the bill will be equally as strong.

Rehearsals for "Alexander the Great," in which Louis James and Frederick Warde are to appear during the coming season, started Monday last at Wagenhals and Kemper's studio at Orange, N. J. The new play will be seen first in the west and on the Pacific coast, and later in the season will be presented for long engagements in Chicago, New York and other Eastern cities. Fifty people will be used in the production. The costumes are by Madame Freisinger from designs by Mr. Wendell, of the Metropolitan opera house.

Anne Caverly has been engaged as William H. Crane's leading woman for the season, and will support the veteran comedian in "The Spenders," a dramatization of Harry Leon Wilson's delightful novel of that name. Miss Caverly was with Eleanor Robson last season in "Audrey," and previously played in Henry Miller's years in London. She is a charming person and a beautiful woman. Her part in "The Spenders" will be that of the pretty New York girl of the "smart set" who surprises all of her blue blooded friends by marrying the young "spender" from Montana after he had lost all of his money.

and had not been accused by Warren-ford and Mack of giving the team worse of it all over the circuit the fact that he gave the club the short end of two close decisions yesterday afternoon might not lay him liable to the accusation that he was it in for the lads without a home. These two decisions gave Fort Wayne the game."

CLEANING RACE PROPERTY

The Olivers Preparing to Make Very Extensive Improvements.

J. and J. D. Oliver, who recently acquired control of most of the property on the east side of the west race, have a force of men at work under the direction of Charles H. Pavey cleaning up the property preparatory to very extensive improvements. The Hodson & Bradell building and the Lobert building have been torn down, and frames are being fitted in, walls are being repaired and other preliminary work done. The Lobert building was one of the oldest on the race. The Taylor building, better known as the old cement factory and the Cogshall Warehouse and paint shop are to be wrecked. The Blood Chilled Iron company is leaving its frame building on the east side of the race, having until Oct. 15 to vacate the ground.

The improvements contemplated by the Messrs. Oliver mean an expenditure of thousands of dollars and a marked change in the appearance of the old west race. The object is to economically utilize the vast water power for generating electricity for the Oliver shoe plant and the Oliver hotel. The latter consumes over 100 horse power in the operation of electric lighting plant, the steam laundry machinery and for other purposes while the plow factory requires many horse power in its various departments. It is proposed to establish a power plant of the most modern type on the race and to transmit the electric current to both establishments.
