OXFORD CREW WINS ANNUAL BOAT RACE

DEFEATS CAMBRIDGE BY THREE FULL LENGTHS

SLOW CONTEST ON THAMES

Wearers of Light Blue Under Dops in Battle--Early Start for Great English-Winner Club

By Associated Press.
LONDON, England, March 22--By three lengths, Oxford defeated Cambridge today in the annual dark-colored rowing race, won by the champions of the Thames River in 1909. The time was 28 minutes, 14 seconds. Last year Oxford won by 14 lengths in 19 minutes and 40 seconds.

For the first time today the light blue put on a good start and bettered its advantage for a few minutes, but thereafter the race was a procession, the only question being as to the winning time.

The inter-varsity race was never slower than it was in 1909, and the two boats were nearly a mile apart when the light blue crossed the line.
