WAR ON JOE ULMAN

SARATOGA SPORTS ALARMED

Invasion of "Kid" Waller and His Chicago Bank Roll is Not Liked—Mock Defeats Lord Derby at Readville, Mass.—Sporting.

Joe Ullman's betting methods precipitate threats of real war, say advices from Saratoga, N. Y. The bitter feeling engendered among Saratoga bookmakers by the invasion of "Kid" Waller and his $1,000,000 bank roll from Chicago to corner the play of the Saratoga betting ring is assuming a dangerous aspect.

As a result of Thursday night's attack on Joe Ullman of the Waller party by Joe Mayer and his friends nearly every prominent layer and his clerk armed themselves to the teeth yesterday in anticipation of further trouble in the ring.

The village attorney got wind of this fact at an early hour and declared that any armed man unable to show a permit to carry a pistol would be prosecuted. Early in the day a fresh squad of detectives men has arrived from New York to reinforce the staff of detectives now patrolling the ring.

The animosity to Waller, Ullman and others is intense. Ullman took a $10,000 on Skillful at 4 to 1, while the market price ruled 1 to 1. He was able to demand the cut price because the New York layers were unable to hedge. Ullman's commission was cut off at 4 to 1, accepting the whole mark but for a two-point margin. Loud talk and grumbling were heard. Should Waller and Ullman persist in their present policy open warfare seems inevitable.

The big operators kept all the money in the Mazo Worth race, yesterday Joe Ullman alone winning $12,000. The winner, Lane of London, with Redfern up, was heavily backed at 4 to 1.
