James B. Gaffney, of New York, Purchases Club—Appoints J. M. Ward President, and Edward Hanlon, Manager.

AMERICAN RESOLUTIONS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The following resolutions adopted by the American league may result in a abandonment of the world's series:

Resolved, That the American league will continue to exercise its privileges and observe its obligations under the national agreement, but will decline to have further relations with the officers of the National league except so far as it may be necessary for the safeguarding of its territorial and player rights, or it further

Resolved, That the American league will not be represented in a world's series or any championship of the world or in any other interleague event unless accorded sole charge of the sale of tickets to games played on its grounds, and unless it receives from the other the understanding that it shall not assume responsibility for the conduct of the business department of games at the park of the other contesting clubs.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—While there were rumbles of war between the National and American league camps today following the declaration of the junior organization last night severing relations with the National league, with the exception of rights as to territory and players, Chairman Garry Herrmann, of the National baseball commission and other magnates of the National league, believe the trouble will be speedily settled.

The National league magnates will take up the "war resolution" at their meeting this afternoon and as Mr. Herrmann expressed it, "there should be peace by nightfall."

American League Adjourns.

Mr. Herrmann says that if there is anything wrong, it can be easily settled and he can see no reason why the present trouble is adjusted. After passing the resolution the American league adjourned and President Ban Johnson says he will leave for Chicago this afternoon.

Ban Johnson laughed when asked if it really meant a baseball war, but it is known that he told a friend that the National league would come to the American league way of thinking in handling the situation, or the world's series would which the American league would be lost. Johnson wants the American league to control the sale of tickets on their own grounds.

The Boston National league club has been sold by James B. Gaffney, of this city, who has appointed John M. Ward president, and Edward Hanlon as manager.

INDIAN OFFICIALS MAY HAVE CHAIN OF CLUBS

Arrange to Place Teams in Springfield and Newark.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 13. — Four baseball teams under the direction and control of one management is a proposition that has seldom been attempted in the history of the national game, time, but such is the problem that confronts officials of the Indianapolis club. President W. H. Watkins and Treasurer Bill Mayer, who hold the controlling interest in the Indianapolis club, are considering a proposition to place the Central and Ohio State leagues, where clubs will be operated next year, as feeders to the club here.

The Indiana officials maintained the same relationship last season, and it was the contention in the Ohio State league. It is now the plan to switch Springfield to the Central league, while the Ohio State league franchise will be utilized by placing a team in Newark, the proposition being to switch the clubs from one Ohio towns. Newark is hardly large enough to support Central league ball, (as being shown when the Grand Rapids club was shifted there toward the close of last season, the Indianapolis officials believe it will be a paying proposition in the Ohio State. The Newark end of the deal was decided upon and signed up this week.

BAN JOHNSON INSULTED.

American League President Incensed at Murphy's Action.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Ban Johnson, president of the American league, did not hesitate to say that he considered the statement given out Monday by Charles G. By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Eddie Root and M. Bedell, both injured in a spill in the six-day bicycle race early this morning, retired from the grind shortly before 4.30 a. m. Fred Hill, Root's partner, and John Bedell, a brother of the rider retired, announced that they would immediately form a new combination and take up the race with the usual penalty of one lap.

The worst spill of the six-day bicycle race, idle for fallen to ability positions, and to-day the contestants were slowly recovering from the effects of the Madison Square garden as steadily as ever. The mile-up early this morning put six riders temporarily out of the race and sent Root, Cameron, Bedell and Wolfe to the dressing room, but by 8 o'clock all the riders were able to be back on the track.

While the doctors were attending the four injured, the other riders were forbidden to scribe, and for two hours the pace was so slow that they fell back to the mark of the leaders. When they got the bell to speed again they hit up a lively pace, but slowed up again and at 8 o'clock they were almost eight miles behind Root and Hill, who had covered 1,000 miles and six hours. Twelve teams, 1,138 miles and nine laps, and the Thomas-Rose and Clavin-Wiley teams, one lap behind. Record, 1,138 miles and eight laps.

Shortly after 11 o'clock John Bedell and Fred Hill, the leaders, had entered the race. They are a lap behind the leaders who have covered 1,191 miles and one lap at 12 o'clock.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Jack Johnson's fighting days are ended. THE GREENSTOCKINGS.

Harry Arndt's regard for the "Greenstockings" dates back to his boyhood days, when the South Bend manager was beginning to experience his first desires to break into the national game. The Greenstockings were wont to be adored, the style of their uniform and the name proving irresistibly attractive to the fancy of Harry. The Greens, "I'll join on that team, some day," Harry used to say. "I'll be a Green yet, will, though, if this keep at it." Mr. Arndt would reply. And he did. Harry was a member of the "defendent" Greenstocking "Nine," and played a good game at second for the Greens. He never played in South Bend on any other team bearing any other name, and he doesn't propose to begin. A South Bend club under any other name would not appeal to him. The Greenstockings are to be the Greens, or been gone, for the Greenstockings' sake, in Harry's opinion.

TRACK ACTIVITIES AT NOTRE DAME INCREASE

Capt. Fletcher and Wesson Are Rounding into Form.

Activities in track work at Notre Dame are increasing every day. In addition to the work of the veterans, many of the new men are showing form which warrants the belief that Coach Maris will find a few capable performers in his squad.

Captain Fletcher is working like a beaver. Already he is running at good speed, and he will be in fine shape, Captain Fletcher is a mile-and-a-half man. He is spending most of his time in the sprints and starts. Jim Wesson is rounding into his customary speed. Wesson is a sprinter and a good hurdler. Wesson is the big point getter at the university. Coach Maris is trying a number of men out for different events, such as the hurdles, the sprints and the mile, expects to eventually make a good man out of the material at hand. The long distance men, Paul and Hogan, are travelling fairly well. Both have been trotting around the country for the past month and have knocked off a good deal of the rust.

Practice will be interrupted in until the Christmas holidays and upon the opening of school work will be resumed in earnest for the First Regular Meet, which is in the middle of January, at Chicago.

Craven is a pitcher, grown a good sight. Craven got a job at the electric plant the chief engineer on an iron punch and as he is a machinist, he thought he could do the job. Craven was one of the old employees engaged him in conversation and indicated that he had been at the work on a punch until he lost a finger and he was anxious to know if he was in control of. In support of his story he displayed a stub on his right hand. Another employee became interested in Craven's work, and after he had left the plant he said to his boss, "I wonder how he did it? Why, I lost one of mine the first time I used one that machine."

"Why?" asked Craven.

"Oh, I got my right thumb pinched in it and it had to be taken off. He proved to be a strong man.

"Hello, Midge," said a fellow employee. "You workin' here?" He confessed that old punch," he advised as he walked away. "It's a touch for fate. See them two stumps? They used to be good fingers."

Next morning you see Craven put his hand in the punch and the superintendent of the shop passed by and chimed in his way to take up his task and stopped to inspect the new employee.

"Hey, pard, do you need all of your fingers for anything? I was wondering if you'd have any better luck than the rest of them."

"Best of who?"

"Why, the fellows that worked on that machine. I had 3 when it was first up in here and one day it caught two fingers on my right hand and—Where are you going?"

"Oh, so long," was Craven's reply, "I guess I'll quit and get a job as pitcher for the Greenstockings. I don't know as I need all my fingers to play ball with and any old time this company thinks I'm going to wind around this place and pump my meal ticket I'll be back in a minute. Its minutes. Good night."
