VETS COP 40 HITS IN TWO GAMES—LEAVE DROLLINGER

VETS CONTINUE TO FATTEN AVERAGES

FORTY HITS IN TWO GAMES DESPITE BROKEN BATS.

DROLLINGER BEATEN, 13-4

Knell Drives Out Homer Said to Have Struck Bull—Locals Have no Difficulty in Hitting Winchell Hard.

Another Bronchо finger was sacrificed on the altar of the slugging demon yesterday, when the Dayton Vets took another stride toward the pennant by clouting out a 13 to 4 victory. With a regular member of the local staff in the box the Bronchos would have had a chance to win, but the Vets refused to show mercy to "Nap" Drollinger, the Laporte recruit, pounding the offerings until the outfielders were gasping for breath.

Manager Wheeler's object in using Drollinger throughout the game was to give him a through test, and a signal the big hurler was left behind when the team departed for Kalamazoo (the last night. Eddie still believes "Nap" can make good, but believes a year in a smaller league will be necessary to season the young pitcher. Who is a left-handed six-footer, but he was forced to stick them over the middle to locate the plate. Naturally the Vets didn't much difficulty in meeting the gill, although they had but one whole bat left at the end of the second inning, and that they left Dayton six days ago. Every one has been broken but the one in less than a week, the others being lopped and lined up before their bench for the entire game. Yesterday afternoon, however, was brought to light when Catcher Kossick received an old cracked bat belonging to Honus Hadley, with evidently gentlemen.

Forty hits in two games is close to the limit for the Vets, however, but that is what the league leaders accomplished at Springbrook park Sunday and Monday, an even score of tingles being obtained on each occasion. Yesterday afternoon Jack Knell was Winchell's candidate for big league honors, who was easy for the locals. Apparently Donovan and Wheeler had the young man's angore, for the slugging outfielders clouted the ball the harder really, the longer he was in the game, finally forced to fly. Ten hingles in five innings aided Winchell in his attempted flight, but his commander and his mates had the game anchored over a dozen runs.

Punch Hits Bull Sign.

A feature of the terrific smiting of the visitors was the hitting of Punch Knell, who, with the players claimed the honors in the Vets' hitting bonfire. Besides his long left field swat, which netted him four bases, Punch drove out three other hingles, one of which was a double. His hits, one of which was a triple, gave him a total of four, putting honors in point of number was Birren, who secured a quartette, but one of which was an outfield safety, however. Jack was a lucky as a horseshoe present, hitting a long fly between second base and dropping a Texas leaguer behind Kirkpatrick. The next time up the Brown sports to right, but on his fifth trip to the plate announced his intention of hitting the ball with bunting, which he did with success. Catcher Darton, also showed out four clean singles.

A high sky added to the hilarity occasioned by such tremendous hitting, the players finding it very difficult to locate the sphere in the air ball. But the elements couldn't be blamed for those scalding singles, the first of which broke forth in the second. The visitors didn't tally, however, until the third, when they had accumulated a quartette over. From that period until the close but one inning tallied in which the visitors did not tally, and in every frame during the game, but one failed to secure a hit, and but one made safe drive. The seventh inning was another fruitful frame, four hingles in that verse resulting in as many markers.

Winchell's Delivery Solved.

In the meantime the Bronchos were finding little difficulty in spanking Winchell's service, so that it was not long before the Vets had Knell down. Snyder singled to short, and Hadley flew to right. Bill went to second when Winchell balked, and Birren' infield tap circulated him. Grefe forced Jackson, Birren taking second on the throw. Donovan hit for two to right by hooking a low one inside, and went to third on Wuffli's out. Wheeler turned one into left center for a triple point driving in Birren and Kirkpatrick, tallying Eddie, but stopping at third himself.

The final for the Bronchos came in the ninth with one down. Byrnes laid down the first base line, and was safe on slow fielding. Grefe was hit by a pitched ball, Byrnes taking second in an tempt to complete a double play. Benson heaved wildly to first and Jack scored, while Donovan lingered for but a moment, Wuffli ending the game by a fly to Knell.

To describe the manner in which the Vets scored their runs would be unnecessary, but the fact remains they tallied in the third, fourth, fifth, seventh, eight and ninth innings, the visitors failed to get a tally in the fourth, fifth, sixth, and eighth innings. What effect will it have on the league leaders? Details of Monday's slaughter:

OLDFIELD IN SOUTH BEND.

Famous Auto Racer Spends Night in City—Enroute to Detroit.

Barney Oldfield, daredevil racing driver, was in South Bend to-day enroute to Detroit. He was driving a blue of motor car racers is driving from Chicago to Detroit to his Benz racing car, a machine with long, low body, painted a bright red.

Oldfield stored his car for the night at the Twentieth Century garage, where he spent over an hour this morning preparing for a run in Michigan to-day. The roads between this city and Detroit are reported to be so bad, but could be not much worse than those he negotiated between Laporte and South Bend yesterday, according to Oldfield. Every part of the machine came in for attention from the motor, who oiled the car throughout, and put it in shape for the run.

Barney Oldfield is one of the greatest racing drivers the world of automobiles has ever known, and has escaped death by the narrowest of margins many times. He is a man of above medium height and rather stocky. While his rather full face is tanned by winds and sun from travel and races in many states.

Barney Oldfield arrived in Oldfield, Pennsylvania, and stopped here both to see the famous material himself, and his car, Oldfield left the morning for Kalamazoo.

GREYS TO MEET INDIANS.

Nebraska Aborigines to Play at Goshen To-morrow.

The Tribune's Special Service.

GOSHEN, Ind., Aug. 29.—The Goshen Greys will play the Nebraska Indians in Goshen Wednesday afternoon. The Elkhart Blue Sox play here Sunday, and Goshen plays in Elkhart Monday.

Horse in Hard Fast.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Aug. 29.—Several hundred dollars changed hands here yesterday when a horse swam in 56 feet of water with a man sitting upright on its back. W. A. Powell and Edward Wilmore, business men here made the first proposition, Wilmore being required by the proclamation of the wager to produce the horse that would do the stunt. Wilmore produced a bay mare, and Powell produced a stallion offering him lower than could cure Merrick, but Powell covered bets which could perform the feat.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

A fast fielding game was played by the locals despite five hooks. It seemed good exclusive of the infield was busy, and exclusive of Knell, having a total of 17 chances.

Wuffli played good ball as third, as did Hadley at short, both making sensational stops. Wuffli picked off a line drive in the second, and Hadley and three his mates put on one occasion, while he started a double play by rounding Kissinger's fly a bit when he pulled in his line drive with one out.

Knell's homer and alleged foul stop strike came in the eighth with one on the bags. It looked like a foul, a good drive, and is said to have chipped a piece off the ball's hand.

George O'Brien found difficulty in locating the plate, Knell getting a drive out for five three drives off.

The high sky bothered the fielders, but Hurley had an unusually fast game, dog on fouls, letting four escape him. Hurley was also a sensational stopper. When the Vets catcher finally managed to catch one, Mike Donovan, who had hit it, bitterly remarked, "I never hit a foul ball yet that wasn't caught."

Dayton fans are enthusiastic over the Vets, which Winchell hunted the ditch for the first time.

It doesn't matter to the Vets what they use. They can hit with anything apparently. When a club hits but one sound bat, and beat a score of games, the Vets are appreciative of local talent.

The Tribune's Special Service.

HUMBOLDT, Ia., Aug. 29.—Frank Gotch, the world's champion wrestler, who is to defend his title against George Hackenschmidt, in Chicago, Sept. 4, is training here for the coming bout. Farmer Jensen, chief of staff, says he has had to change the champion's system of preparation for the mill. Gotch has been training entirely too hard, and Jensen and Burns decided it would be better for the resident that he will be able to pass the scales at 176 pounds, and that he escaped death by the narrowest of margins many times. He is a man of above medium height and rather stocky. While his rather full face is tanned by winds and sun from travel and races in many states.

Barney Oldfield arrived in Oldfield, Pennsylvania, and stopped here both to see the famous material himself, and his car. Oldfield left the morning for Kalamazoo.

TEX COVINGTON STOPS ATHLETICS IN SIXTH

Ex-Central Leaguer Relieves Veteran Tigers With Success.

When Wild Bill Donovan and Willet failed to check the Athletics yesterday in six innings, during which time 12 runs were scored off their delivery, an ex-Central leaguer graduated from the Carson circuit last fall, brought the champions of the world up short. Tex Covington turned the trick, the former Kos holding the hard hitting easterners to one hit and many a tally in the final four frames of the game.

Three hundred automobile men from Georgia and Alabama attended the game in Ty Cobb's honor. Ty failed to show up.

Rube Walsh broke into the game again yesterday, this time in the field. The ex-Boston player played shortstop for the Phillies and secured one single, one putout and one assist. Rube's brother, Jack, pitched for the Athletics, was in form Monday, Rube Marquard holding St. Louis to two hits, and aiding the Giants materially in their upward climb. Not a run was made off Rube, while he struck out two.

Dolly Stark was strong on the offense again yesterday for Brooklyn, securing two bagles and a run. He figured in the winning run getting for the Trolley Dodgers, Cincinnati, throughout the game hard away to the Reds, Shufleder Humphrey of the O. & P. leagues, pitched the Brooklyn club yesterday.

When a spectator at yesterday's Cub-Phillie game attempted to interfere with the umpire, Bill Klem, calling each visitor aloud to the police about the man's actions, but was met with opposition in the endeavors to have the spectator ejected from the grounds. President Fogel commenced apparently, the rough tactics of the spectator, attempting to have Klem arrested for inciting a riot, when he insisted on the removal of the spectator. Klem finally gained his point.

WELL, JACK.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 29.—Old Jack Taylor, the war horse who pitched and played third in this village before Doc Carson assembled the prerogative of all heads of portable leagues, Jack Taylor, who pitched for the Big Red, has the distinction of being the "reason" cost Mordecai Brown, rather than the three-fingered wonder—is playing in Chicago.

It was about nearly

Jack was nearing the time when he would be a veteran of the big leagues in his opinion, and he thought the time that P. L. Chance got so trading about in hopes of saving his bacon, he finally cancelled—the greatest machine ever produced in the world, and Jack Taylor, being all-in-the-pen. But St. Louis didn't know that. Neither did St. Louis know that it had a great pitcher in Three-Fingered Brown.

Jack Taylor, Jack Taylor, Jack Taylor, his performances finally forced their minds, the St. Louis management smartly parted with catcher O'Neill and Pitcher Mordecai Brown for the Cub O'Neill, and Chance couldn't use O'Neill, and O'Neill soon found that he was not the right material for Catcher Pat Moran, who did good work in coaching some young pitchers.

Taylor didn't last long with St. Louis—Brown is still first, and the Cubs to Chicago.

HAWLEY REAPS HUGE PROFITS AS A BEAR

Bulls Play into His Hands and Fortune is Swelled.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 29.—Writing from New York to the Boston Financial bureau, Adams, who is well posted on Wall street, says:

"A man now abroad, one of the multimillionaire of Wall street got last week in some badly posted quarters the result of bear leadership. This was not because he was really too bearish, but because he was too bullish. He was a close observer of the stock market when he left for Europe early in the summer.

"Another railroad man, not in Europe but in Wall street, and also a multimillionaire, last week raked in a big profit on the bear side of the stock exchange—and said nothing.

"That's the difference just now between Daniel G. Reid in Paris and Edward Hawley in New York. The latter is a nephew of Thomas Jacob; the hand of the hand of time.

"Few men know the railroads as does Reid. He has made a life study of them.

"Without the interests commerce and the financial interests of this great, the success of the railroads for higher freight rates, will hardly eat up and toss notice.

"With the clearer facts and information he quickly reached the conclusion that the stock market is in a condition entirely new, conditions which pointed unmistakably to a serious commitment in their earnings and possibly a general reduction in their dividends. From that moment Hawley's mind was made up, but he secure a great deal of stock in country, because of effect but uncomprominding bear.

"Some of the large speculative interests of Wall street did not look at the situation in the light of the new interest bought and put up stocks. Their favorite were the Harriman Pacific issues, Reading and United States steel. This suited Hawley. The bear side of the market was the greatest day in Boston Reid, and stock. He proceeded to sell these stocks.

"Whether he learned about the Spokane decision of the commerce commission before it was made public may never be known, but there is no question that he was the first to sell the big lots quoted in the market, and the bear side of the stock he had picked to sell."

EXHIBIT 300 BABIES.

Iowa Parents Enter Infants for Fair Award.

DES MOINES, Aug. 29.—Babies galore and fond and anxious parents formed the crowd to-day in the auditorium at the state fair, where four judges deliberated for hours on the different merits of the 300 babies which were offered for their inspection. Talcott, Ames, first prize for the prettiest baby, being given a close race by Lawrence Handbauer, son of J. F. Handbauer, of Des Moines, who has won two first prizes at the state fair in years gone by. The prize for the healthiest was under the auspices of the Central Church of Christ, of Des Moines.
