WHERE YOUR MONEY BUYS MOST

Paying Cash and Otherwise

THE CASH SYSTEM of buying and selling is the only one that receives consideration here—we find it is the only one that should ever be considered either by the buyer or the seller. Its many advantages are so very apparent as to hardly need reiteration and yet we know hundreds of otherwise shrewd and thrifty people who daily buy either on time or at credit-extending stores under the delusion that they are being benefited by the course they pursue.

There is nothing more fallacious.

Only two classes of people can really afford to buy on credit: those who never intend to pay and the very rich who need have no regard for cost. All that great army of people who live between these two extremes, that is to themselves and those dependent on them to make every cent do the honest duty of the person with the cash in hand is able to dictate practically his own terms—he is free to buy when and where he pleases. (If honestly he seeks the best values for the lowest prices and that invariably brings him to this shop, locally. "One price to all—for cash only—and that the very lowest consistent with good business judgment—is the very foundation of our success."
