

FRANK ANTLES DIES OF CANCER

Prominent Jay County Citizen Is Buried at Portland Cemetery Friday

Portland, Ind., July 27.—Frank Antles, 68, one of the best known farmers of Jay County, was buried at the Portland cemetery Friday afternoon after an illness of two years of cancer of the stomach. He was born in Jay County, Ind., and was a member of the Jay County Farmers' Union. He was a well-known and popular man in his community.

The funeral was held Friday afternoon at the funeral home of J. H. Smith, 111 N. Main, Muncie. The burial was at the Portland cemetery.

The plan of the Portland city and school system of this city has been under consideration for a number of years in the Portland school system. AGAIN!..

The Power of "The Press"

Has Been Demonstrated

Thousands of people were attracted to the "Human Fly" Exhibition held Thursday afternoon and night, when "Babe" White, the world's most daring building climber appeared for the first time in Muncie.

Why Did the Public Respond?

Because they desired to see a clean exhibition of daring nature, because they believed the message that appeared in these columns to be true—That confidence in our advertising columns that has always existed.

How Did They Know of the Exhibition?

In no other form of newspaper announcement, except through the Muncie Press columns was this big event advertised. Thousands and thousands responded—DO THEY READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS IN THE PRESS, IS PAST HISTORY IN MUNICE—All advertisers who have sampled Press advertising know of its GREAT PULLING POWER.

Traffic Police--Traffic Demoralized

For the first time in many months (except Saturdays), the city administration was forced to establish traffic police at the street intersections to direct the thousands of people attending the exhibition--THE PRESS TAKES DIRECT CREDIT FOR THIS CROWD.

Dollar Day Crowd Is More Proof

Thousands of people were attracted to Muncie's Dollar Day, a great number evidently through the five co-operative pages which appeared in The Press--We say this because possibly sixty per cent of the shopping was done in the morning, which is very unusual. "SPECIAL STRESS" was made in these Press co-operative ads exclusively that shopping in the morning was of particular benefit to the buyer, and the crowds shopped in the morning. Several stores using exclusive Press advertising were jammed in the morning and all day--ask them about it--The answer--

'There's No Substitute For Results'

You'll benefit by delivering your message to the people in The Press. "THE PRESS GOES HOME AND STAYS HOME"
