FORCED WEDLOCK IS NOT WELCOMED

FRENCHMEN BALK AT PROPOSED LEGISLATION.

BILL EXCITES THE NATION

Consternation of Bureaucracy of Republic Over Measure Introduced by Senator Lannelongue to Check Depopulation.

PARIS, July 18.—There is consternation in the French bureaucracy over a bill before the senate introduced by Senator Lannelongue for the purpose of checking the depopulation movement in France. It contains the following provisions:

Extra military service for single men over 28 years of age; compulsory marriage for all civil servants and those holding municipal or communal appointments from the age of 25, and especial advantages for those having three or more children, and the suppression of the articles in the code compelling a man to divide his fortune among his children.

The father, in M. Lannelongue's bill, would be able to dispose of a fortune how he liked, and in this way, the senator thinks, would not restrict his family in fear that his property would be cut up into very small portions. The younger children would gain from this system, and would have to make their own way in life.

Object to Marriage.

It is the provision for compulsory marriage of public officials and prefecture heads on the number of children which causes the consternation among the bureaucrats.

Many functionaries are by no means married men. In fact, bachelors are probably in the majority while spinsters certainly are in the posts, telegraph and telephone. Hitherto chiefs of all government offices have, as a rule, been considerably more in the favor of bachelors among the male clerks. The idea generally was that a functionary without home incumbrances was more zealous in the discharge of his duties than a married man, or, as of a long overtime, he only to run out and dine at a restaurant, whereas his married colleague was afraid of keeping madame waiting for his dinner.

Now all this is to be changed. It will be rather hard on some. A bachelor, having severely starved his natural human ambition to be the father of a family, in order to get on in the "administration," may have some cause for complaint if the tables are turned and married men pass over his head, now that, perhaps, he has reached an age at which it is no longer so easy to find a mate as it might have been.

Bachelors Lose Temper.

What might-have-been, indeed, will not the unfortunate bachelor functionary sigh over? One can imagine also losing his temper even in the presence of his chief.

I fell in love in April, 1889, loved again, yet more deeply in June, 1897. I was madly in love in September, 1902. Each time I crushed my heart, I stifled my passion; nay, purposely I made myself ridiculous, I got on in the office, and now Durand, who married when he was sixth assistant deputy undersecretary of the third class in your circumlocution office, and who married when I married the girl I was in love with in June, 1897, or April, 1899—I forget which at the present moment—are to be promoted over me because they fulfilled their public duties and became fathers? Justice, where art thou? What wool the chief's answer be?"

As for the ladies of the posts, telegraphs and telephones, a few years ago there was actually a question whether married women should be employed at all by regulation. Luckily, so inhuman a veto never was applied, or the postmaster who applied it would hear something from Prof. Lannelongue.

Must Have Permission.

But in practice the marriage of functionaries is not discouraged, but encouraging, and it is difficult to imagine that it could be. The most efficient telephonist is not likely to be the one who has most babies at home to occupy her attention, and, as a matter of fact, ought to be stimulating, instead of connecting wires for impatient people to exchange usually idle talk over them. A regulation, at all events, exists, and is rigorously enforced, forbidding any government employee to marry without government permission. Most clerks can marry without leave of the authorities at present. Soon they may have to marry to comply with the government.

Fashions come in and go out with the suddenness of kaleidoscopic changes. This is said to be due to the constant demand at Newport, Palm Beach, Monte Carlo and Chicago and San Francisco meets or American high life for something new and, as yet, undiscovered.

Launches Fetter Skirt.

I hear that the entrance or fetter skirt was dreamt of by the professorial humorists of the great couturiers who launched it in her Boulevard Malesherbes warehouse. It is not quite so to anything like the same length as M. Paquet of the academy in proclaiming the greater worthiness of woman to wife, their being, looking at them from the point of view of a mediæval Paris in cloth, nor given to drink as men. This professor, who fills a chair in a Paris town, and is an eminent classical scholar, made a wager that a fetter skirt would be worn by the ladies for a whole after-Easter season, when the air, the sky, the perfume of gardens, fields and woods invite to free exercise out of doors. The golf links and the tennis courts of Grand Paris and along the seacoast, the bagnelle pole matches, the need of lifting the skirts of villa and country house, would not hinder its vogue.

Resembles a Fungus.

So far, so good—or, if you like it better, too foolish. The circumference of the skirt at its widest point is less than that of a fungus mushroom. The fetter is placed below the knees. But the couturiers and couturiers who go in for taste as well as for novelty, make the fettering band of elastic in question, which gives the skirt its name, contrasts with the rest of the garment harmoniously with the other garments.

The beauty in the robe fourreau—travel and wearing a hat of wide—is the result of a suitably clever theatrical ladies, all snug, seamless, and, despite fetter, not ungracefully in style. It has become the thing for those who are not in too manifest need of the Marinbad water "cure" to wear no corset. The fourreau, or sheath gown, is at bust and waist like the Greek goddess, "all the more charm free to sink and swell where heaven pleases." That purity of outline that a sculptor might wish for is not wanted. A coordinate girdle, the fetter, emphasizes the waist, and, if one disappears in the region of the waist, so might the apron strings of a stout peasant woman going to 45.

Finds New Graft Scandal.

France is rapidly without a graft scandal or so. As the result of revelations made in the course of a recent debate on the budget, a number of the deputies declared that under M. Combes ministry they had been offered the Legion of Honor in return for monetary payment. Mr. Rouanet (socialist) has brought in a motion that the alleged corruption in the decorations in France, proposing that his motion be discussed immediately.

Amid some noise the prime minister, M. Briand, urged that M. Rouanet's motion be put off because of the influence of the revelations and that the question of the abolition of decorations must first be thoroughly considered. There were all sorts of insinuations, he said, and not only were only be decorations, but by all kinds of favors. There were also, numbers of good citizens who "did not deserve to see wilter in their buttonholes the decorations they had been offered." A curious example of political corruption has come before the Paris courts. M. Chevaux sued M. Jacquelin for $8,000 which he declares he expended on behalf of M. Jacquelin at the general election last May. It appears that M. Jacquelin was a candidate in consideration of a payment of this sum by M. Jacquelin.

M. Chevaux was, according to the bargain, to do all he could to secure the election of M. Jacquelin, and he did so. Another man was elected in their division, and M. Jacquelin refused to pay the money. Hence the claim by M. Chevaux.

Foreseen Strenuous Times.

M. Briand, the French premier, who is expected to be confirmed shortly in a general election, is a solicitor by profession, although he started life as a compositor. He has strenuous times before him, as he is bringing in a bill to alter the electoral law, but he has plenty of energy and is not afraid of work. He is a man who will be able to bend him to their will have found out. About eighteen years ago M. Briand took part in a national congress of workers. He represented the "syndicates" of Nantes, and the "syndicates" of Montceau-les-Mines of Tribune. His presence was objected to by some of the delegates who argued that, as a qualified solicitor, he ought to be "ashamed to be seen in such a place as such and a workman myself," replied M. Briand, "a working compositor, as I compose myself the newspaper that I publish at St. Nazaire. Where did you get the money to make yourself a lawyer?" he was next asked.

"By working for it," replied the future premier, so he was at once admitted. It is interesting to note that since he has had the responsibilities of office his views have been considerably modified.

MICHIGAN SHERIFF IS CRITICIZED IN COURT

Local Officer Would Demand Explanation if Law Provides Way.

If the law provides a way, the sheriff of Berrien county, Michigan, and his two deputies, may be called upon to make a formal explanation of their motive in releasing an insane prisoner near St. Mary's academy a few days ago. The man has given the local county authorities so much trouble. Sheriff M. F. Kerr appealed to the county commissioners yesterday afternoon for some action in the case. County Attorney Fred Woodward was asked to ascertain if the law provides any method of the punishment of the Michigan officers.

Sheriff Kerr stated to the commissioners he had almost positive information that the two Berrien county officers had taken the insane man, their prisoner locally on this side of the state line, in order to get him off their hands. The sheriff stated the two officers had purchased round trip tickets over the Southern Michigan railway from Berrien Springs to St. Joseph, and then came on the same ticket to South Bend. He said he believed the officers had intended to leave the car at the academy stop, depending on the mashes to come through into the city, but that the man had given them the slip, however, but the officials boarded it on its return trip from the city, leaving the man at large. Sheriff Kerr stated.

The insane man, who is confined in a cell at the county jail on an Absolute Insanity charge, is said to be giving the county officials more trouble than any single prisoner confined in the jail for several years. The fellow claims to be a bobby maker and he has broken up the furniture in his cell and made the man Sunday afternoon tap heart half of a leather and canvas glove, a pair of which are being used in lieu of a straight jacket.

Sheriff Kerr received the first word from relatives of the insane man yesterday afternoon when from Toledo and stated the man has given much trouble on former occasions. Further correspondence will be necessary, as the elder Mr. Frents in writing asked the sheriff to detain the man until his son will be received. A second letter written to-day conveyed the information that this will be impossible.

PAROLED CONVICT IS WALKING ARSENAL

Burrell Webb Arrested After Two Months of Liberty.

The Tribune's Special Service.

BEDFORD, Ind., July 18.—Burrell Webb, who was paroled from the Michigan City prison two months ago and went to work at Marion has left his job and failed to report to the prison authorities, has armed with two revolvers and a shotgun when officers came upon him at the home of his brother at Dark Hollow, last night. Webb fired upon the officers and wounded him with his gun and he surrendered. He is charged with having committed thefts in Greene and Lawrence counties recently.

GALLION MAY LOSE JOB

Deputy Game Commissioner After Misfortunes, Likely to be Ousted.

The Tribune's Special Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 18.—The misfortunes of A. M. Gallion, of Logansport, a Democrat appointee, seemed may culminate in his losing his job. Gallion was shot by a poacher whom he was trying to arrest on the charge of poaching. A few days later Gov. Marshall issued a requisition to Illinois for the arrest of a man who deserted his wife in that state. If George W. Miles, fish and game commissioner, finds that Gallion was guilty of wife desertion, Gallion will be ousted, it is said, as announced at the state house to-day.

PRICE OF BREAD MAY BE ADVANCED IN CITY

Increase is Predicted by Members of Bakers' Union.

The retail price of bread sold in South Bend may be advanced to six cents in order to meet an increased wholesale price according to a report read at a meeting of the newly organized bakers' union Saturday night. Grocers will hold a meeting at an early date to consider the question, according to the report. If action is taken the price of small loaves of bread will be advanced from five to six cents and the price of the 10 cent size to eight cents.

Members of the labor union, which has effected permanent organization at the meeting Saturday night, will open a campaign for the advance in the wholesale price of bread in order to secure shorter hours and better working hours themselves. The bakery workers claim the wholesale price can be increased without making an advanced retail price necessary. The bakers have received a raise in wages of five cents and formal demands for a more liberal wage scale will be made upon the bakers of the city at once.

Additional members are expected to join the new union at its next meeting to be held Saturday night. An effort will be made to enlist the bakers of Elkhart, Goshen and Michiganda and an aggregate membership of 100 is expected to be secured at first.

The following permanent officers were elected by the union: President, Russell Wright; vice president, Stepnick Pawlski; recording secretary, Harry Miller; financial and corresponding secretary, Ed Kaiser; treasurer, Charles Teacher; trustees, Tony Dobkowski, Stephen Buttalski, Edward Lobaugh; delegates to Central Labor union, Edward Lobaugh, Walter Kaiser, Stepnick Pawlski.

The union will meet first and third Saturday nights of each month for its regular meetings.

STUDEBAKER CLUB TO VISIT WINONA LAKE

Third Annual Outing Will Be Given Next Saturday Afternoon.

Winona lake, popular summer resort and the home of the widely known Winona assembly, will be the scene of the annual outing of the Studebaker club, members of the organization, which is made up of the general office employes of the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing company, with their families and friends, will visit the lake next Saturday afternoon.

Arrangements for the outing have been completed Saturday by a committee which has secured special cars in which to make an automobile trip to the lake. Those in the party were Alfred G. Geyer, president; H. A. Kimball, vice-president; Joseph W. Johnston, secretary and treasurer; Frank Gage and A. S. Birrell, chairman of the entertainment and athletic committee.

WORK ON RIVER WALL IS HALTED BY COURT

Judge W. A. Funk Issues Temporary Order Against Improvement.

Plans of the Diesel Chilled Plow company and E. C. Westervelt for the construction of a retaining wall along the west bank of the St. Joseph river near the Colfax avenue bridge were temporarily halted by an injunction, temporary restraining order against the improvement, asked by the Oliver Chilled Plow works and South Bend Manufacturing company was granted by Judge W. A. Funk of the Superior court yesterday afternoon. The injunction suit against the improvement will be taken up at the fall term of court, until which time the temporary order will remain operative.

Yesterday morning the preliminary plans completed by the special committee of court that construction of the proposed retaining wall will interfere with the working of the South Bend Manufacturing company. The manufacturing company complained was also made that the defendants are constantly filling in with slag and rubbish a strip of river land near the Colfax avenue bridge, the retaining order covered both points at issue.

RIDE BUCKING BRONCHOS

Cowboys Demonstrate Science of "Busting" Wild West Show.

One of the many interesting sides of the western type of manhood, the cowboy, is exploited in Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East. The management has organized a goodly band of the rugged hard-riders and they will illustrate the "bronco busting" for which they are depended upon the open prairie for more than a quarter of a century. They will give riding exhibitions and samples of the cowboy's sport, and will illustrate the "broncho busting" or "broncho breaking."

Buffalo Bill, whose real name is Col. W. F. Cody, will make his annual visit to this city, according to the management's announcement, when exhibitions are given in South Bend July 28.

RASH APPEARS AGAIN

Summer Eczema and Hot Weather Skin Troubles Demand Prompt Treatment With Poslam.

All skin troubles which are prevalent in hot weather—rashes, inflammations, so-called "summer" eczema, itching spots, hives, pimples, etc., demand the use of poslam for their prompt eradication. Poslam is a remedy for all over-heated blood, skin irritation, digestive disorders, etc. In some persons the calling of fish or cereal in certain months always brings them on. Poslam is also a remedy for all inflammed bones, sunburn, mosquito bites, burns etc., poslam should be used in preference to angle-rine, surprising results being noted after a single application.

The readiness with which poslam heals small surfaces and minor troubles is less an indication of its rapid action in curing eczema, tetter, scaly itch, ugly rash, pimples, limbs, scalp or any part of the body.

A special 50-cent package of poslam is prepared for minor uses, and this as well as the regular $1 jar, is on sale at druggists, particularly Chas. Cook's.

But a free sample, which will afford a convincing test, may be obtained by mail, by writing to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th street, New York City.

SWAMP-ROOT. Is not recommended for everything but it is claimed by many that it does do good work in kidney, liver and bladder troubles it will be found just the right medicine. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. A sample bottle may be got free, also pamphlet telling all about it. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.
