FREE METHODISTS ARRANGE FOR BIG CAMP MEETING.

DEATH OF NORTH SIDE BOY

Baseball Games to be Played—Man's Inhumanity to Man—John Clement's Foot Amputated to Save Life—Local News.

BUREAU OF THE TRIBUNE, No. 118 S. MAIN ST. TEL. 84, MISHAWAKA, IND., JULY 14.

The Free Methodists of the district are making arrangements for a big camp meeting to be held 10 days beginning August 13 and closing the 23d. It will be held three quarters of a mile east of Osceola on the line of the Indiana Railway and will be of east access. A large tent will be secured in which the meetings will be conducted and there will be between 75 and 100 smaller tents.

A number of prominent clergymen will be present among them Prof. Clark Jones, of Spring Arbor, Mich., college. All of the ministers of the Free Methodist church of the district will be in attendance and the camp meeting promises to be one of the largest held in years. Rev. C. W. Wade, of Mishawaka, is interesting his congregation here in the proposed services. Special arrangements have been made with the Indiana Railway company and all baggage will be carried free to the grounds.

To Play in Osceola.

Arrangements are being made to pull off the third game between Second and Main street business men in Osceola next Tuesday at the invitation of Edward Cregan, who promises to prepare a diamond and pay the transportation of the teams and managers. The event will be advertised by him and a good attendance is assured. This afternoon a practice game between men on the two streets is in progress on the Osceola diamond.

Another interesting game will in all probability be played Thursday of this week when the business men of the north side will meet those of the south side on the north side diamond. Among the players who will participate from the south side are Harry Bolers, Eugene Pulsen, Ralph Jernegan, Jay Cook, Fred Barrows, Dr. T. F. Seymour, Henry Eggleston, Adolph Forstbajer, George Chapman, C. J. Hick.

The north side has selected the following as its nine: George McDuffy, John Wambach, J. Rash, W. Creager, F. Waldner, D. Spittig, Fred Slade, Homer Hall and R. Hoerstman. An interesting and exciting game is anticipated.

Man's Inhumanity to Man.

A story of man's inhumanity to man comes from the north side. A man who has a confirmed invalid wife and who has been near death's door and is now seriously ill, resides on the north side. Added to this they have a dead child in the house. On account of misfortune and sickness the family of nine man has fallen behind in rent and the landlord has ordered them out to the street. Neighbors yesterday, it is understood, took up a collection to pay the rent and tendered it to the proprietor, but he refused it, saying that he did not want the money, but it the house. The family cannot move under the existing conditions and the landlord is being censured not a little for his apparent lack of sympathy.

Amputate Foot at Hospital.

John Clements, the little son of George Clements who had a foot so severely injured in an elevator two weeks ago was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, South Bend in the Hills ambulance to have the member amputated with a hope of saving his life.

Miss John was taken to the Epworth hospital this morning in the Finch ambulance. Miss John has appendicitis and will submit to an operation.

Talk of Cheaper Gas.

It has been the general impression about the city that the South Bend Fuel & Gas company promised cheaper gas July 1st. A well known citizen of this city telephoned the company regarding the matter and the answer was rather indefinite and was to the effect that the rate might be reduced next January. A petition is now in circulation asking for cheaper gas and is being liberally signed.

CARDINAL MARTINELLI MAY BE NEXT POPE.

Cardinal Sebastian Martinelli, who is mentioned as a likely candidate for pope, is widely known in the United States, where he succeeded Cardinal Satolli as papal delegate to Washington. Martinelli is a Roman and 55 years old. He was educated at the pontifical school of Lucca and subsequently at the College of St. Apollinare in Rome. After the ordinary course he became doctor of theology. He was ordained a priest. He was just created titular archbishop of Ephesus. He had meanwhile risen rapidly in the order of St. Augustine, which he had joined as a youth, and early in his career attracted the attention of Pope Leo, who was always on the watch for bright young ecclesiastics. Martinelli was made a member of the Roman Congregation of the Holy Office at Rome and occupied that post when he was sent to America. On April 15, 1901, he was proclaimed cardinal at the consistory in Rome and received the red hat in the church of Santa Maria in Traspontina. He was in Baltimore, Md., on May 9, 1902. His policy in America was one of conciliation to reach the clergy and the laity.

HE CALLS IT MURDER

JUSTICE BREWER DENOUNCES HANGING AND BURNING.

SEES HOPE FOR REACTION

Member of United States Supreme Court Says Reaction of Public Sentiment Will Diminish Prevalence of Mob Rule.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 14.—"Every man who takes part in the burning or lynching of a negro is a murderer and should be so considered in the eyes of the law."

So declared Associate Justice David G. Brewer of the United States supreme court at his hotel here last night. He continued:

"Although it is always given in defense of such actions that what are known in lawyers as the extenuating circumstances lessen to a considerable degree the gravity of the offense, it is my opinion that no circumstance whatever can change the classification of such a crime to anything else but murder.

"Any man who kills his fellow man otherwise than in defense of self or property commits nothing less than a murder. The man who takes part in the burning of a human being is as atrocious was his conduct, is guilty of this crime.

"I know that sentiment varies regarding this subject in different parts of the country. In the south the lynching of a negro who has committed an attack on a white girl is considered proper and just, just as is the summary shooting of the man who calls a gentleman a liar in the west. But neither one. No I consider the circumstances extenuating in the least. The crime of lynching can be called nothing else than murder.

"It is my belief that there will soon be a popular reaction against this wholesale lynching fever, which seems to have swept the country of late. Public opinion is at least being aroused by the frequency of the occurrence. This reaction should come in the form of proper legislation.

"We judges on the bench are powerless to act on this question. We cannot take the initiative step until the cases are brought under our jurisdiction. Then we are bound by the law. Somebody must prosecute before the law can take its course. No lynching case has ever found its way to the supreme bench, and probably will not, unless the crime is committed in the District of Columbia."

Justice Brewer is in Milwaukee for the purpose of attending the annual meeting of the directors and agents of the Northwestern Life Insurance company.

BETTER THAN COMIC PAPER

Paragraphs in the Ever-Welcome Weekly From Home.

"I never buy any of those comic weeklies when I want to regale myself with humorous literature," said a down town business man to a Star reporter the other day. "No, sir; I don't throw away my good cash shekels for funny papers, but I don't, by any means, go without reading matter that tickles the risibilities.

"When I was younger than I am now I lived away out in the middle west, in a town of about six or seven hundred inhabitants, not including stray cats or cantorous dogs. That was the size of the town three weeks after it started, and it has the same population to-day. At one time, of course, there was a boom population of perhaps a couple of thousand people, but the wild rush gradually died away and the population settled down to a more moderate size. The people there live happily and peacefully and consider themselves just as much in the world as does the stock broker in Wall street. There is a main street in the town, paved with gravel in order to keep the street from blowing away on windy days, and at night on every corner of the main street, if you have good eyesight, you can see a flickering kerosene lamp shedding its rays over an area of about six feet square, intended to light the midnight wanderer home. But it is a good old town, and the people there are honest and frank and thoughtful of each other, and each one knows the other's business, just like a big family.

"There is a weekly paper published in my home town, and every Tuesday morning my eyes are gladdened with the sight of the familiar old sheet. The paper commences to give us the news, what is news, of that section, and it contains a great deal of matter clipped from daily papers, stating that if this notice is marked on it, his paid your subscription is due. Please remit." So about every 12 months I get a blue pencil mark and send out my little old dollar. In the next issue there is a notice to the effect that your former esteemed townsman, Mr. ——, who is now residing in Washington, D. C., has our thanks for $1 on subscription, which has been placed in our exchequer to his credit. Take something on us, Mr.——. Who'll be the next?

"By the way, here is a copy of the paper," said the business man, fishing it out from a pile on the table. "I'll read you some of the news. Take this, for instance:

"'H. D. Brown has purchased his cow. H. D. says she gives a good mess and a half at milking and nearly as cream at that. He says he is going to supply the whole country with butter and cheese this fall.'

"Here's another: 'Sam Jones and his estimable wife come to town the other day with a wagon load of pumpkins and nearly everybody in town but yours truly has been going around with traces of pumpkin pies about the aperture of their countenances. They say Sam's pumpkins make the best pies ever. You know where we live, Sam.'

"There is always some salty at the market, and some men and women of the locality, and each young person is watched as a cat watches a mouse at a mantle rack. First the young man furnishes copy as a suitor; then there are frequent remarks that a wedding is about due. Ask J. P.' And, finally, when he is assured he comes in for a good 'puff' and congratulations by the editor, who never acknowledges a generous slice of the wedding cake which was just splendid.

"Now, here is a sample of the roast on the young man: 'George Smith was seen driving in his new buggy to our neighboring town of B——— last Wednesday evening. What's the matter with George? Can't he find a town good enough for him?'

"Another specimen reads like this: 'Harry Jones has been doing a lot of sniffing the past few days on account of a bad cold. They say Harry's put in a good share of last Tuesday night in holding down a reserved seat on Mr. Brown's front porch. Beaux Brown is home again, you know.'

"I notice here an item concerning an entertainment held in the town:

"'An elocution recital was pulled off at the opera house last night by a young lady from one of the big cities whose name we have forgotten. As we didn't get any tickets for the show we didn't go, and so we can't say whether it was any good or not. But some of those who went, and were sorry of it, say she pawed the air mightily, and that while she wasn't much as a speaker, she would make a powerful good swimmer. But since we wasn't there we will refrain from commenting upon the finis.'

"It is evident that the editor's feelings were trampled upon. No, sir, you can't sell any fancy papers to me when I have this weekly corr-dapeller. Every week I find an array of news items just like the foregoing, and that's all I've time to reading I require."—Washington Star.

New Company Elects Officers.

The stockholders of the Home Union Land company met last evening in the office of Gray & Stone, Merchants bank building, and elected the following officers: Dr. H. A. Fink, president; Alva Phillips, vice-president; Charles P. Gray, secretary, and Reuben Fink, treasurer. This company was recently incorporated for the purpose of doing a general real estate business in this city and vicinity. The officers are prominent and well known business men of the city.

Man Assaulted by Salonkeeper.

J. C. Hoeded, of 110 West Hine street, was assaulted and badly beaten by a saloonkeeper on Studebaker street about 10 o'clock last night. His skull was fractured and his right eyelid lacerated. Dr. Zolecki attended him.

Missionary Society to Meet.

KAISER WILHELM IS A VERY ARDENT AND ENTHUSIASTIC YACHTSMAN.

The Kaiser is an ardent yachtsman as all the world knows. When attired in his semi-yachting, semi-naval costume the picture he presents is not the least proponderating of his many striking poses. This photograph shows how Emperor Wilhelm looks when he attends the famous Kiel regatta which is an event of unusual interest to this country just now, on account of the presence there of our visiting squadron of warships.
