NEWS OF MISHAWAKA

son, David Sabitsky and William K. Lamport.

Those who were present Saturday evening were: Ralph H. Jorgensen, a member of the school of this city; Mary A. Spratley, a teacher in the South Bend schools and an author whose verses are finding their way into the magazines; Dr. Frederick Ward Jorgensen and G. Bunwich, sons of the city's practicing physicians; Fred A. Partridge, of the First National bank and treasurer of the Mishawaka school board; Miss Jessie Jakeway, of Harvey, of Indianapolis; Bertha Mason, principal of the Franklin school, South Bend; Lena Jakeway, Mrs. Nels Christensen; Earle J. W. Fink, office manager of the Mishawaka Knitting Manufacturing company and William K. Lamport, associate editor of The Tribune. D. J. Rogers, formerly superintendent of the local schools and Miss Mabel Rogers, a member of the High school, were also present. Those who could not attend William H. Roetwick, of Boston, and Albert C. Hutchinson sent letters of regret which were read at the meeting.

After the dinner was served, the evening, of which Mrs. Jorgensen was the author, was sung with old time enthusiasm. "Then Mr. Jorgensen, acting as toastmaster called on Miss Welsh. This class was the first to complete the entire course under her. In a short speech which was very impressive and paid high tribute to the "boys and girls" of 1897, Miss Welsh read a poem, written and composed for "The Last Ten Years." Miss Spratley gave a prophecy for the next 10 years and Mr. Fink talked on the subject: "What the Class of '97 Has Done for Me." Mr. Jorgensen gave a talk that was an inspiration to those present and made all decide to live the future life more determination than ever. Reminiscences were indulged in by all present and the evening concluded with the singing of the class song, "Auld Lang Syne." The dinner was in charge of Mrs. Jorgensen. It was decided to have another reunion in 1917.

Near Fire Memorial Service.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather, Stanchion Post, G. A. R., turned out strong Sunday morning to attend memorial services at Trinity Episcopal church, where the rector, Rev. John Adams Linn delivered a fine memorial sermon. Many citizens also attended the services in the afternoon when the Mozart Male Quartet, of South Bend, sang "Rock of Ages" by Frank Van Praah, the bass soprano, and a baritone solo by H. O. Engelhardt.

Rector Linn selected as a base for his sermon the incident in the life of Saul of the Philistines when three men of his bravest men, even so well, three of his bravest men, "Jashobeam, Eleazar and Shammah" time, risking their lives, broke through the Philistine lines and brought David his drink from the water. It was so sacred, brought at such a sacrifice, and such an exhibition of true love and devotion that David could not bring himself to drink it to the Lord and he poured the cup as sacred. He likened the bravery of the men who left their homes and loved ones in the north to the bravery of the men who fought for them. They went not for the sake of fame or glory, but for love and liberty.

In brief, Mr. Linn said:

"The graves of the sons who were buried in the south are sacred and we another force on them as a sacred privilege, and as symbols of love. Memorial Day and religion have not always been regarded as synonymous terms. Some have thought that it brought dangers and death for them and liberty is religion. It is uncontestable that a patriot should not be a christian. When men had them, they thought they could not be christians. Is it not a question to shoulder for them is that not religion? Such days as this teach us what liberty is and what it cost. The patriot gave life, health, and all for liberty. We owe it to them to that liberty as dearly purchased. It should not be destroyed by tissue. This is a day when we should have men strong and true. Not more men, but more men who are ready to die, to protect, to state, men who will respect the ballot as a sacred right and office as a sacred trust. Then will the boys men who fought for liberty be honored. Then will the sacrifice be not in vain. The American flag was used as decorations in the church and the services were thoroughly patriotic. The song "America," closed the services.

Young Priest Sings First Mass.

Rev. Henry Horstman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Horstman, of this city, celebrated his first Mass at Fort Wayne Sunday morning at the Immaculate Conception church. Mass commenced at 10 o'clock. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion and former Mishawaka was represented by Rev. Father Dwyer, of Fort Wayne, chancellor of the diocese; Rev. John F. Walter Coffron and James Budlinck, of Mishawaka, who are preparing for holy orders, were also present.

At 10:30 o'clock St. Joseph's Mutual Relief association gathered at St. Joseph's hall and marched to the rectory to meet Pastor L. A. Moench and the new priest.

Upon the arrival at the sanctuary of the church, there took place a pretty ceremony including a congratulatory poem given at the threshold by the sister of the young priest, after the newly ordained priest, little girls in white, also presented him a handsome floral wreath resting on a silk cushion. The reinforced choir under the direction of Professor Joseph Bonfield, sang "Veni Creator," and the new priest followed by singing the creed to the Holy Ghost. Solemn High mass followed.

At 2 o'clock the services the clergy, who were entertained by the pastor, Rev. L. A. Moench, at dinner at the rectory. At 3 o'clock solemn vespers were sung. Father Horstman being celebrant.

At 7 o'clock a reception, who too found the young priest at Wiley hall, on North Bridge street, at which relatives, visiting clergymen, pastor, and many friends were present. A bountiful dinner was served, which, instrumental and vocal, were features of the reception. The events of the day will long be remembered by all who participated in the reception lasted until 9 o'clock.

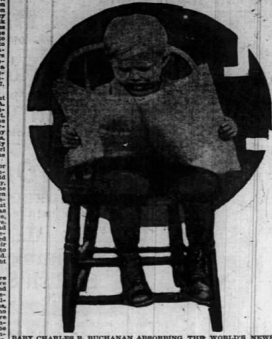
THIS THREE YEAR OLD CHILD READS BOOKS AND PAPERS



BABY CHARLES B. BUCHANAN ABSORBING THE WORLD'S NEWS.

Evansville, Ind., May 27.—At the age of three years and two months, little Charles Bryce Buchanan, son of a farmer, who lives near Evansville, is a student of the contents of newspapers. Do not read until they are 10 years older. He has excited the attention of scholars. His youthful prodigy read the second chapter of Matthew from the Bible and extracts from newspapers and later he astonished his father in a way that indicated he had an understanding of what he had read.

Asked what kind of reading he liked best, he replied: "I have just finished Ben Hur and Quo Vadis. As You Like It but I like Charles Dickens much better."

The little boy went to a bookcase and, by standing on his chosen, was able to reach down a volume, from which he handed down "David Copperfield." He began reading aloud and made few mistakes, except on the longer and more difficult words.

Rev. A. M. Rootman, of Logansport, occupied the First Christian church pulpit Sunday morning.

while enceinte, with bearing-down pains, and my back hurt me so bad I did not know what to do. I could not get around, and had to go to bed. On a friend's advice, I sent 16 miles for a bottle of Wine of Cardui, and after the third dose I began to improve. I continued to take it and in a few days was able to do my work. Two months later I had a fine 12-pound baby girl, and did not even have a doctor—did not feel sick at all. Now, I keep it always in the house, and would not do without it."
